U. S. Army
Korean War

I served in Korea from 1954-1956, after graduating from the Army R.O.T.C. program at the University of Illinois as a Second Lieutenant (Signal Corps). I then served as a Platoon Commander of a detachment on the DMZ, the border between North and South Korea; Battalion Commander (temporarily); and a staff officer (S2, Intelligence) in a battalion; the last two assignments were also near the DMZ. Following my honorable discharge as a First Lieutenant, I immediately enrolled in graduate school. In 2012, many years after my retirement from Brockport College in the 1990s, I was invited, with others, by the Korean Government to receive a Patriot Medal.

No photos were taken of me in military service. However, I am including three photos. They are: (1) A greeting from a Korean general at the medal ceremony noted above, 2012; (2) An early photo of me as an R.O.T. C. cadet, 1950s; and (3) A group photo of the ceremony for medal awardees. I am sitting in the 1st row, 3rd from the right side.)
